Dear Jerry,

A couple of months ago I began volunteering at the Kingwood Branch Library. I have been assisting with the sorting of the donated books, magazines, etc. Because of the large number of items donated and the limited space to store the donations between the quarterly Used Book Sales, most of the books have to be boxed and placed in two small storage bins.

I told Wendy Schneider, the Branch Librarian, and Carolyn Humphrey, FOLK's President, that my dream would be to build a large 'room' in which the used books could be stored and sold on an ongoing basis. I made a lot of friends during my 25 years with the Chase and I feel that we could probably get such a room build via of donations.

I would love the opportunity to share my dream with you in more detail. Since you live in Huffman, would it be possible for me to meet with you at the Kingwood Library either on your way to work, or on your way home? Since I am retired my 'schedule' is VERY flexible. Thus you name the time and date of which is convenient to you and I'll be there.

Thanks,

P.S. Hope all is well with you and your family. If I remember correctly, one of your sons is married. Are you and Pat grandparents yet?

History:

Kingwood Branch was built in 1983. The building was dedicated on August 21, 1983, on the heels of Hurricane Alicia. The library is 12,000 sq. ft in size. The library was built as a result of a grassroots campaign by residents of the area who saw the need for a library. They organized as FOLK - Friends of the Library Kingwood - in November 1978 and began immediately petitioning the Harris County for a library. Plans were put into place to begin fundraising and they have not stopped yet.

The library was the only "game in town" in Kingwood for many years. As a result, during these early years, many local businesses became involved in the library's growth by holding fundraising events of their own; the cable company donated $5.00 per customer each year during their May drive for new customers, the music school held "Galas" and donated a percentage to the library. It was a heady time for the library.

FOLK (Friends of the Library Kingwood) has been an active group since before the library opened. The Texas State Library selected the Kingwood Friends' 1986 Buy-a-Book Campaign as the State Library Project of the Year. In addition to raising funds through the annual Buy-A-Book campaign and quarterly Used Book Sales, the Friends donate their time to such special projects as the Summer Reading Programs for the children, Patron Count Week and are generally on call to help the library in any way they can.

The Kingwood Garden club has taken on the Kingwood Library as a special project and as a result the flowerbed in the front of the library is spectacular in all seasons. In 1999 they contacted Steve LeGrande, a local resident who specializes in amazing topiaries, to create a topiary dragon and bookworm from the shrubbery in the front of the library. A contest was held by the library to name the dragon and the bookworm; Sir Clackentoes, the dragon, and Rupert, the bookworm, were born. They continue to delight our patrons, young and old.
